Hemp Gummies Shown To Relieve Discomfort

Hemp Gummies offer users fast acting relief from joint and muscle discomfort that's absolutely delicious; now available in the U.S. without a prescription

Chris Laufstein
Associated Health Press

BOSTON — For millions battling daily discomfort, this news couldn't be more exciting.

A new relief extract found in hemp is available across the nation and can be purchased without a prescription.

And the best part, it comes to users in the form of a tasty gummy bear.

So you can say goodbye to pills, needles, and creams!

Hemp Gummies, contains pure concentrated doses of hemp extract, which can help relieve joint discomfort along with general muscle aches and soreness.

It also calms, relaxes, and eases tension all over the body.

Exciting new scientific research shows that hemp extract contains special relief molecules called cannabinoids which bind to receptor sites in the brain and body. When taken orally, hemp extract activates these receptors, and soothing comfort begins to take form.

Available Across the Nation

Recent developments, like the US Farm Bill, allow Hemp Gummies to be sold in the U.S. without a prescription. And since it can't get you high it's flying off the shelves.

"Most people have no idea that pure hemp extract, like Hemp Gummies, can be purchased. And that's because it contains no THC," explains Dr. Joe Wezensky, who sits on the scientific board at Medici Quest.

"Instead, it's bursting with special relief compounds called cannabinoids. These cannabinoids target special receptor sites all over the body but are most prominent in the brain."

"This system of cannabinoids and the receptors that they bind to are called the Endocannabinoid System and science is just now unlocking its amazing medical potential"

"In fact, the initial research has been so impressive that hemp extract is now patented by the US Government (patent #6,630,507)."

"It's also being used by athletes in the NFL, MMA among other physically demanding sports as a safe alternative."

Clearing Up the Confusion Around Hemp

One of the biggest mistakes people make when talking about hemp extract is mixing it up with marijuana.

Although the two fall under the same plant category, cannabis sativa, they have completely different effects on the body.

Remarkably, hemp extract is available in the U.S. and can't get you high (ever!). That's because there is no THC in it, the chemical that makes you feel "buzzed".

"Although you can't get high from Hemp Gummies, you can start feeling the effective relief," explains Wezensky.

"Most people have very low cannabinoid levels, which is why they constantly ache. Hemp Gummies boosts cannabinoid levels extremely fast, helping relieve lingering joint discomfort ...muscle tension... and general soreness. It also eases stress and elicits amazing relaxation without feeling impaired. And what most people really love is they're delicious and so easy to take on the go.

How it Works

Clinical studies show that cannabinoids and the receptors that they bind to are found all over your body.

However, they are most concentrated in your brain. That's why it has such a profound impact on how you feel, especially your level of comfort.

These cannabinoids and their receptors work like "lock and key" and bind to each other triggering important biological processes.

Hemp Extract, like Hemp Gummies, may help users with...

- Aching joints
- Sore muscles
- Cramping
- Leg and foot discomfort
- Restlessness
- Stress
- Sleep problems

Keeps Your Body Balanced...

The incredible impact cannabinoids have on your health is directly related to the primary goal of your Endocannabinoid System, which is to maintain a balance in the body, a physiological state known as homeostasis.

Research shows that maintaining this balance is a key to vitality and healthy bodily function.

The cannabinoids found in Hemp Gummies, hemp extract, replenish your levels quickly, easing discomfort over the entire body.

Plus, by keeping your body in balance (homeostasis), Hemp Gummies also helps to relieve stress and tension...improve sleep... and even promote relaxation and calmness.

A GUMMY A DAY TO KEEP ALL YOUR ACHES AWAY: Hemp Gummies a 5 milligram dose of Hemp Extract that works all day to keep you comfortable.

Not Yet Sold in Stores

Hemp extract that is derived from industrial hemp, like Hemp Gummies, is available nationwide. However, several major pharmaceutical companies are currently testing hemp extract in clinical settings, which means it may require a prescription in the future. It's advised to get Hemp Gummies while you can.

Taking All the Risk Off Consumers

A large percentage of men and women using Hemp Gummies experience truly amazing results. That's why it's now being sold with a guarantee that goes way beyond the industry standard.

"We can only make this guarantee because we are 100% certain our customers will be satisfied," says Wezensky. We want to take full risk off consumers. So in addition to offering substantial discounts for first time customers, we also make them a huge promise that ensures they don't have to risk a cent."

Here's how it works: Take Hemp Gummies exactly as directed and you must be thrilled with the results! Otherwise, simply return the empty bottles within 90 days. Then, the company will refund your money plus give you an extra $10 for having tried the product.

Where To Find Hemp Gummies

This is the official nationwide release of Hemp Gummies hemp extract in Massachusetts. And so, the company is offering a special discount supply to anyone who calls within the next 48 hours.

An Order Hotline has been set up for local readers to call. This gives everyone an equal chance to try Hemp Gummies hemp extract.

Starting at 7:00AM today, the discount offer will be available for 48 hours. All you have to do is call TOLL FREE at 1-800-735-2020. The company will do the rest.

Important: Due to hemp extracts growing popularity and recent media exposure, phone lines are often busy. If you call and do not immediately get through, please be patient and call back.

Brian Tyree Henry on the too close for comfort satire of 'Child's Play'

The modern reboot of the "Chucky" franchise hits theaters this Friday. PAT KING

How dependent are we on our technology? Furthermore, as we become reliant on our phones and devices to perform what were once everyday tasks, what would happen if something were to go awry in the programming? These questions are posed in the new reboot of the classic horror franchise, "Child's Play", starring Aubrey Plaza, Brian Tyree Henry, and Mark Hamil as the voice of Chucky.

The film takes place in the present day, a single mother Karen Barclay, played by Plaza, works at a big box store to make ends meet and provide for her son Andy, played by Gabriel Bateman. While working she processes a return on a brand new "Buddi" doll (with a wireless router symbol to dot the "i") and decides to bring it home to Andy for his birthday. Little did she know, this particular doll's AI engineering had been altered, by a disgruntled worker at the Kaslan Corporation manufacturing plant, and set to be able to carry out dangerous and negative acts in response to its surroundings. As Andy shows his new friend, Chucky, his rough neighborhood and voices his disdain for his Mom's jerk of a boyfriend, Shane, Chucky gets some new ideas on how to keep Andy his best friend forever.

This evolved new version of Chucky, voiced with equal parts menace and heart by Hamil, is a bit more modern than the original film, with total access to its owner's cloud and home entertainment and security systems to, you know, gain their trust and friendship. All of this is set in the opening scene of the film with an infomercial from the Kaslan Corporation unveiling the new doll. This intro is a shocking bit of foreshadowing for the viewer, and even took the film's star Brian Tyree Henry, by surprise upon reading the script.

"When they gave us the script, it wasn't called 'Child's Play' at the beginning," says Brian Tyree Henry, who stars as Detective Mike Norris whose mother lives on the same hall as the Barclays in the film. "It was called the 'Kaslan Project,'" remembers the Emmy and Tony-nominated actor, "And, so, I'm reading the story not really knowing exactly what it's about and I'm going through it and I was like... And I see the name Chucky and I'm like, no way. There's no way they're doing this, right? Are they really gonna do it?"

Oh, and they really did it. The film, directed by Norwegian director Lars Klevberg and written by Tyler Burton Smith, brings both the camp and scares in equal measure making for one of the most purely fun fright fests to hit the theaters this summer. But while the film veers into slasher territory, it definitely sends home a message that in order to create and maintain relationships, you need to work on nurturing a loving environment to set a good example. After all, Chucky wasn't programmed to be evil from the start. It is the hostile environment at home that throws him off of the deep edge.

"That's why I kind of like the horror genre so much," says Henry with a laugh, "because, in the horror genre, they literally are commentaries on us as a people, in our society. Horror movies literally reflect kind of where we are as human beings on this earth, sometimes. And turns that mirror back on ourselves and be like, 'oh sh-t man, maybe we're actually kind of awful and we need to make some kind of change?' But at the same time it is, the thing I love the most about our 'Child's Play' is that it's really fun at the end of the day. You find yourself rooting for certain, for murder sometimes I'm like, you did that you didn't necessarily think you wanted it just... It brings us together in a way.

'Child's Play' hits theaters Friday, June 21.

Time Out Market Boston brings a food

Over the past five years, the Fenway neighborhood has seen a major uptick in bar and restaurant openings; Fool's Errand, Hojoko, and Tiger Mama are just a few of the spots that have made their homes in the area.

Now, on June 27, Time Out Market Boston is adding 15 more options in one fell swoop. The 25,000-square-foot food hall, located in an historic Art Deco building, brings together a all-star lineup of established local names and brand new eateries from acclaimed chefs across a range of cuisines.

The unveiling of the market comes on the heels of Time Out Market openings in New York and Miami, and locations in Chicago and Montreal are set to follow by the end of this year. The concept was first introduced in Lisbon, Portugal in 2014, and has met with overwhelming success; it's currently the country's most popular attraction.

"Our curated lineup of the city's outstanding culinary talent is a reflection of the city's fantastic food scene," said Time Out Market CEO Didier Souillat. "Time Out Market Boston will be a unique place you can visit in the morning, for lunch or dinner—or anytime in between—and enjoy great food, drinks, and cultural experiences. It is where you can get a true taste of the city."

A number of familiar Boston faces will be opening outposts in the market. Early birds can grab their morning joe from beloved small-batch brewer George Howell Coffee and a maple bacon treat from Somerville mainstay Union Square Donuts to start the day. Eastern Mediterranean eatery anoush'ella plans to serve up its flatbread wraps, salads, and grain bowls, and Kendall Square favorite Mama-leh's Delicatessen will also open its second location at the market, featuring smoked fish, pastrami, and egg sandwiches.

Saltie Girl will be all about the tinned seafood and lobster rolls locals have grown to love at its Back Bay raw bar. Another popular restaurant, Tasting Counter, will see modern updates of its dishes with local ingredients from Chef Peter Ungár.

Just in the mood for a (fancy) snack? Inman Square's BISq will offer a selection of charcuterie and cheese boards, plus heartier sandwiches. Organic, plant-based fare takes center stage at Revolution Health Kitchen, which focuses on nutritious juices, smoothies, toasts, soups, and salads. Mobile Cooks also specializes in vegan options.

Those craving a sweet treat can get their fix with small-batch, artisanal varieties of gelato in flavors like ricotta fig, pistachio, and creamy dark chocolate at Hingham-based Gelato & Chill.

The hall will feature several completely new concepts as well. Tim and Nancy Cushman of O Ya are doing double duty with two restaurants: Ms. Chuck's Deluxe Chicken & Dumplings, which will serve up Asian fare with a twist, and gogo ya, an inventive sushi bar. Craigie on Main chef Tony Maws will also translate one of the Cambridge restaurant's most popular items into a counter-serve spot called Craigie Burger.

And — of course — there will be pizza, courtesy of Chef Michael Schlow. In addition to a more upscale Italian concept, Schlow is debuting a Roman-style pizza shop. The menu will include both classic styles like Margherita and specialty pies topped with fresh vegetables, along with salads and small plates.

It's not just about food, either; the space will boast a culinary school, retail store, and two cocktail bars. As Soullat explained, "Time Out Market isn't just a food hall—it is the world's first food and cultural market based wholly on editorial curation. At the heart of everything we do is our dedication to curating the best the city—it's best food, drinks and cultural experiences. It is all about making fine dining casual, and casual extraordinary. We call it the democratization of fine dining."

GRRRRRR...

Why do people think it's okay to cut in line? There is a line there for a reason, and everyone's time is just as precious as yours. Even if someone who is in front of you in line isn't in a rush, it is still so selfish and self-involved to cut in front of them. The world doesn't work that way. If you don't want to wait in line then get your coffee or bagel or whatever somewhere else.

Biden under fire from rivals for remarks about 'civility' with segregationists

Sen. Cory Booker called for an apology from the presidential front-runner.

Former Vice President Joe Biden came under sharp criticism from some of his Democratic presidential rivals on Wednesday for remarks he made this week about his time working civilly with segregationists serving in the Senate in the 1970s.

U.S. Sen. Cory Booker, who is also seeking the Democratic nomination, called on Biden to apologize.

"Frankly, I'm disappointed that he hasn't issued an immediate apology for the pain his words are dredging up for many Americans. He should," Booker, who is black, said in a statement.

Biden, 76, is leading in early polls to take on President Donald Trump in 2020.

At issue are Biden's remarks at a New York City fundraiser for his presidential campaign on Tuesday night.

Biden said that U.S. leaders have lost the ability to work together. He pointed to two segregationists from the South who were serving in the Senate when Biden was elected — Democratic Sens. James Eastland of Mississippi and Herman Talmadge of Georgia.

Eastland described black people as inferior and fought against efforts to desegregate the South. When Biden joined the U.S. Senate in 1973, he and Eastland, members of the same political party, served on the same committee.

"At least there was some civility. We got things done. We didn't agree on much of anything. We got things done. We got it finished," Biden said, according to a pool report distributed by his campaign. "But today, you look at the other side and you're the enemy. Not the opposition, the enemy. We don't talk to each other anymore."

U.S. Sen. Cory Booker

New York City Mayor Bill de Blasio, who is also seeking the Democratic nomination, criticized Biden's remarks.

"It's past time for apologies or evolution from @JoeBiden," de Blasio wrote on Twitter. "He repeatedly demonstrates that he is out of step with the values of the modern Democratic Party."

De Blasio called out Biden for invoking Eastland, posting a photo of himself on Twitter with his wife, who is black, and his two multi-racial children.

"It's 2019 & @JoeBiden is longing for the good old days of 'civility' typified by James Eastland. Eastland thought my multiracial family should be illegal & that whites were entitled to 'the pursuit of dead n'ggers,'" de Blasio wrote on Twitter.

Booker also criticized Biden for his use of the word "boy" — a term that was frequently used by racists to demean black men. REUTERS

Buildings stand in the Seaport neighborhood of Boston. No American city has left such a large swath of expensive new oceanfront real estate and infrastructure exposed to the worst the environment has to offer, according to Chuck Watson, owner of Enki Research. Sex-cult guru Raniere guilty on all counts

The Nxivm leader could face life in prison.

Keith Raniere, a New York man accused of running a cult-like group in which women were kept on starvation diets, branded with his initials and ordered to have sex with him, was found guilty of all charges against him by a New York jury on Wednesday.

Raniere, 58, was charged with crimes including racketeering conspiracy, sex trafficking and possession of child pornography. He faces a possible sentence of life in prison.

The verdict in federal court in Brooklyn followed a trial that lasted more than six weeks. Raniere's sentencing is set for Sept. 25.

Raniere is the founder of Nxivm, a purported self-improvement organization based in upstate New York. Prosecutors said that he created a secret sorority within Nxivm called DOS in which female "slaves" turned over compromising materials that were used to blackmail them.

DOS was sold to recruits as an all-female organization, when in fact it was controlled by Raniere, according to former members who testified at the trial.

Outside of the courthouse, after the verdict was read, a group of former Nxivm members gave the prosecution team a round of applause.

Catherine Oxenberg, the mother of a former cult member, called her daughter in front of reporters to tell her the verdict. "I'm so happy," the mother was heard saying.

Raniere was the "grandmaster" of an inner circle of slaves, who in turn recruited slaves of their own. Some of those recruits were coerced into having sex with Raniere, and some were branded with his initials, according to former members.

DOS slaves were forced to hand over nude photos and embarrassing confessions and told that the material would be released if they disobeyed orders or tried to leave, according to a former member and other witnesses.

Prosecutors also said that, years before creating DOS, Raniere began a sexual relationship with a 15-year-old girl. The child pornography charges stem from explicit pictures he took of the girl, who went on to become one of his inner circle of DOS slaves.

Raniere's lawyer, Marc Agnifilo, had told jurors in his closing arguments on Monday that no women were ever forced to do anything against their will.

Other members of Nxivm, which is pronounced

"nexium," were charged alongside Raniere, and have all pleaded guilty. They include Nxivm president Nancy Salzman; her daughter, Lauren Salzman, who testified as the prosecution's star witness; actress Allison Mack; and Seagram liquor heiress Claire Bronfman.

The group first became known for its "Executive Success Program" courses, which purported to give students the ability to achieve their life goals by overcoming mental blocks. Witnesses testified that leaders of the organization psychologically manipulated and abused its members and demanded total obedience. REUTERS

Lawsuit claims NFL, Carrie Underwood lifted 'SNF' theme

Country music superstar Carrie Underwood, the National Football League and NBC were sued on Wednesday for allegedly copying the "Game On" theme song used in 2018 for "Sunday Night Football" from an identically-titled song recorded two years earlier.

Heidi Merrill, who said she uploaded her "Game On" to Google's YouTube in March 2017, said her copyright was infringed after Underwood's producer Mark Bright rejected her August 2017 pitch at a conference in Nashville to use the song for "Sunday Night Football."

In their complaint, Merrill and her co-writers said Underwood's "Game On" is "substantially — even strikingly — similar, if not identical" to their song, including in title, tempo, meter, time signature, rhythmic and melodic contours and patterns, note and chord progressions, and hooks.

lishing affiliates of Sony Corp. and Warner Music Group are among the nine defendants named in the lawsuit, which was filed in Manhattan federal court.

A spokesman for Underwood did not immediately respond to requests for comment. Spokesmen for the NFL and Sony declined to comment. NBC, which is owned by Comcast Corp., and the publisher Warner/Chappell Music had no immediate comment.

Underwood has performed theme songs for "Sunday Night Football" since 2013.

Tim Foster, a lawyer at Sam P. Israel PC representing the plaintiffs, said the lawsuit followed the rejection by several defendants of his clients' effort to negotiate a resolution.

"Ms. Underwood recorded a song that was substantially similar to the original song submitted through her producer, without giving credit or compensation of any kind to the original songwriters," Foster said in an interview. "We assume that there will be significant damages."

Underwood, 36, became famous by winning the fourth season of "American Idol" in 2005. She has since won dozens of country music awards and seven Grammy awards. REUTERS

Cruise tips with Carnival Cruise Line Chief Fun Officer Shaquille O'Neal

The NBA legend is bringing his Big Chicken fast-casual restaurants to select cruises in spring 2020.

PAT KING
patrick.king@metronews.com

Any fan of NBA Hall-Of-Famer Shaquille O'Neal knows that the man knows how to have a good time.

After retiring with one of the most celebrated careers in professional basketball, Shaq has presented himself as an advocate for things fun, whether it's DJing around the world, starring in commercials or busting on his co-host and playful rival, Charles Barkley, on TNT's "NBA Halftime Show."

These days, Shaq is bringing his joyful attitude to life as Carnival Cruise Line's Chief Fun Officer.

"I've been CFO for two years now, and it's my job to ensure that people have fun on the ship," explains O'Neal, who sat down with me before Carnival's "Cruise Into Summer" media event. "I used to live on the beach across from a port, and I thought the ship was for old people, until I finally got on one. So I went to [them] and said, 'You should hire me to tell people that you should choose Carnival and choose fun.'"

"What [they] have always done is an unbelievable job of keeping prices affordable for people. It's just my job to let people know that there is so much stuff to do on the ship. It's not just go to your room, go out look on the water and go back into your room. There are restaurants, libraries, sport courts, putt-putt golf course, movie theater, comedy shows. It's like the best Vegas hotel on the water."

While he is getting the word out about how fun these cruises are, Shaq's wildly popular Las Vegas-based fast-casual fried-chicken sandwich restaurant, Big Chicken, will be partnering with two of Carnival's newest ships, the Radiance and the Mardi Gras, for the spring 2020 season. Both restaurants will include hit sandwiches such as the Shaq Attack, the Shaq Daddy and the M.D.E. Shaq's Big Chicken will join the ranks of an impressive food lineup. "[It's] one of the top restaurants in Vegas," says Shaq of Big Chicken. "I should know, because I have four of the top five in Vegas, which is great."

While many people who plan vacations stress out about cramming in as much as possible into their trips, the CFO's idea of a perfect cruise is one where you come with an open mind and go with the flow. "It depends on what you want to do," says Shaq.

"If you want to make the day about eating? Every restaurant. If you want to make the day about having fun? Movies, sports court, pool. There's just so much you can do. You want to get away from everybody? Library. You want to tell the kids to stay home and have a romantic night with the wife? Fine dining. I've been on the ship a couple of times. I've only taken the three-day cruises. I know how to not be seen on the cruise. I'll go and rest during the day and come out at night."

Recently announced Carnival Cruise Line Cruise Director Matt Mitcham agrees with the big boss who he says, embodies the entire ethos of Carnival.

"I would say come with an open mind," says Mitcham. "We've got loads of new things for you guys. Even if you've sailed before, come like it's your first time."

Now that the basketball season is over, O'Neal's co-host on TNT's "NBA Halftime Show," Charles Barkley, might need to find a position on the ship. But where would the Chief Fun Officer place a willing and able Barkley?

"He'd be downstairs in the toiletry department," says O'Neal. "because he's full of sht and he knows how to clean the sht." For more information and to book your next trip, head over to carnival.com.

HORFORD LOSS NOT CATASTROPHIC

DANNY PICARD

Listen to "The Danny Picard Show" at dannypicard.com. Follow him on Twitter @dannypicard

Don't let the door hit you on the way out.

That's how I feel about Al Horford declining next year's $30 million player option with the Celtics and reportedly moving on to sign a four-year deal with another team. The news comes around the same time that we're learning Kyrie Irving will also be opting out to become a free agent.

Not that we shouldn't have seen Irving's departure coming. We should have. And I did. But to see Horford pack up and run from Boston was something I wouldn't have put my money on.

If anything, if Horford was to go, I would've expected him to possibly agree to a sign-and-trade. Initial reports of Horford's opt-out weren't really a surprise, as most people believed he was intending to re-sign with the Celtics on a multi-year deal at a lower average annual value, in order to give the team a little salary cap relief.

That does not seem to be the case now, though. ESPN's Adrian Wojnarowski is reporting that there's "too great of a gulf between what the team is willing to offer and what Horford wants on a long-term deal."

In other words, Horford's days in Boston are done. Again, don't let that door hit you, Al.

This is me knocking Horford on his way out the door while not really knocking Horford on his way out the door. What I'm really trying to do is control my emotions, and understand that the Celtics' star players are still here. They go by the names of Jaylen Brown and Jayson Tatum.

When Celtics president of basketball operations Danny Ainge hit the reset button back in the summer of 2013 by trading Paul Pierce and Kevin Garnett to the Brooklyn Nets, he acquired several first-round picks from the Nets, which resulted in the drafting of Brown at No. 3 overall in 2016 and Tatum at No. 3 overall in 2017.

Brown is 22 years old. Tatum is 21. Ainge has held on to both, even avoiding the temptation of sending one of the young players to New Orleans in a trade for Anthony Davis.

Davis was traded to the Los Angeles Lakers over the weekend. As I told you before, the Celtics were wise to not get involved in a bidding war and give up Brown or Tatum. Because, like I said, those are the Celtics' real stars, now and for years to come.

The Celtics at least owe it to themselves to find out if that's true. With Irving and Horford gone, it's time to hand Brown and Tatum the keys to the car. After all, wasn't that the plan when he traded Pierce and Garnett to draft players like Brown and Tatum with the ever-so-valuable "Brooklyn Picks," and then let those players develop into NBA stars?

We've already seen their potential. They've both already made a major impact on a playoff team. And you'd have to think they're only going to improve at the NBA level, especially with the golden opportunity that they're about to receive in Boston.

Al Horford is likely signing elsewhere in free agency.

GETTY IMAGES

With some money freed up, who knows where the Celtics could spend it? Even if they don't spend it on anything right now, I'm actually looking forward to seeing Brown and Tatum make this their team. Sure, Gordon Hayward is still in the mix, and so is Marcus Smart, and possibly Terry Rozier. But this is going to be a Celtics team led by Brown and Tatum.

If Horford doesn't want to be here for that, he doesn't have to be.
